Tuesday Morn.

Mattapoisett Nov. 9th 58

Dear Cousin.

I now sit down to inform you of my health which is very good at present and I hope these few lines will find you enjoying the same great blessing. I arrived home on Friday safe and sound but I can tell you I got wet to my skin before I got half way to Wyricks. When I rode down from New Bedford on the outside of the Stage and got a nice soaking I can tell you. When I got home I found a letter from Sarah Dodge & she wants to know if you are married yet if you are not you had better, for before long they will have your name on the Old Maids list; & she says that is a despisable name so look out and not let them put your name down. She says she thanks the Lord her name is not down on that list. Franklin wants me to come up with him Thanksgivings but I tell him that I've been enough for this time at home but if he will wait until I make one more voyage I will come up with him. I expect you and Rose Brown went to meeting Sunday & had a good time. I wish I was there then, but you can have good times all the time in this large city of Mattapoisett. I wish you would come down here &

visit our large city good old City. Give my best respects to Aphonnie and Rose Brown
& to all the Family & tell them they must come down. I must now draw this to a close by bidding you Good Day for now the present.

I Think of thee.

I think of thee when the early morn
First dawns in the eastern sky,
When the refreshing breeze is waking up,
And when it departs to die.
I think of thee at the noontide hour,
When gay and gifted are near,
For the memory of the past comes forth,
And claims the unbidden tear.

I think of thee at the quiet hush
Of the gentle twilight shade;
A brief survey of departed joys,
Then brings to me mental aid.
I think of thee at the evening time,
When the stars are sparkling bright,
And muse o'er those not forgotten days,
When our souls were fresh and light.

I think of thee at the midnight hour,
When the world seems wrapt in sleep,
For my spirit hovers round thy form,
And affection's vigils keep.
I think of thee at the hour of prayer,
But thy name I mention not;
Yet humbly ask at the foot of Grace,
That blessings may be thy lot.

From Annie M. Allen

Every man has his heart sorrows, which the world knows not
And oftentimes we call a man cold, when he is only sad

A. M. A.

The tears of beauty are like light clouds floating over a heaven of stars, bedimming them for a moment that they may shine with greater luster than before

A. M. A.

Envy is disclosed by true friendship as cowardly is by true love

A. M. A.

To _____

There is brightness in thine eye,
Like light in Summer's dawn;
There is an odor in thy sigh,
More sweet than opening flowers.
There is ruby on thy lip,
More bright than ever wine
From no other cup I'd sip
But the nectar brim of thine.

The music of thy tongue,
Would do still a knight's ear;
There is sweetness in thy song,
Like the birds when flowers appear.
A world is in thy locks,
And in thy smile I see
Such rapture, I've no wish,
But destiny and thee.

Spirit Longings.

I pine I pine for a true fonde heart,
To beat in repose with mine own;
A soul that shall form of mine a part,
A tower of affections tone.

A fair eye that shall beam with loves true light
Ever on me close
Whose rays shall be more cheering more bright
When Shadows are rounds thrown.

Annie M. Allen.

The Dying Californian.

Lay up nearer brother nearer,
For my limbs are growing cold,
And thy presence seemeth dearer,
When thy arms around me folds;
I am dying, brother dying,
Soon you'll miss me in your halls,
For my form will soon be lying
'Neath the ocean's briny falls.

Hearken to me, brother hearken,
I have something I would say
Ere the veil my vision darken,
And I go from hence away;
I am going, surely going,
But my hope in God is strong;
I am willing, brother willing, knowing
That he doeth nothing wrong;

Tell my father, when you greet him,
That in death I prayed for him,
Prayed that I might on day meet him
In a world that's free from sin;
Tell my mother, (God assist her,
Now that she is growing old,)
Tell her, her child would be glad have kissed her
When his lips grew pale and cold.

Listen brother 'tis each whisper
'Tis my wife I'd speak of now;
Tell her, oh, tell her; how I missed her,
When the fever burned my brow;
Tell her, brother, closely listen
Don't forget a single word,
That in death my eyes did glisten,
With the tears her memory stirred.

"The Dying Californian" Continued.

"Tell her she must kiss my children,
Like the kiss I last impressed,
"Hold them as when last I held them,
Folded closely to my breast
Give them early to their Maker;
Puting all her trust in God,
And He never will forsake her,
For He said so in His word.

Oh my children Heaven bless them,
They were all my life to me,
"Would I could once more caress them,
Ere I sink beneath the sea;
"I was for them I crossed the ocean,
"What my hopes were I'll not tell,
But I have gained an orphan's portion,
Yet He doeth all things well

"Tell my sisters I remembered
Every kindly parting word;
And my heart has been kept tender
"By the thoughts their memory stirred;
Tell them I were reached the haven,
"Where I sought the precious dust;"
"But I've gained a port called Heaven,
"Where the gold will never rust

Urge them to secure an entrance,
For they'll find their brother there;
Faith in Jesus and repentance
"Will secure for each a share.
"Hark! I hear my Savior speaking,
"Yes- I know his voyce so well;
"Then I am gone Oh! don't be weeping,
"Brother here's my last farewell.
